End Year Financial Report

Looking back at the period of the past three months, we have seen so much that God has done for us and on behalf of the street children. In addition to all, we have reached an agreement with the Living Water organization to work out of their compound near the airport in Juba. This area is close to where many of the street children spend their days and nights in the market of Juba, Konyokonyo and many other locations, so it is a perfect place to receive them. The compound will require some renovations to enhance security and to become functional for the ministry, so we are currently looking for funds and help to see that the children’s home is prepared for the street kids.

1. Continuous regular meetings: We hold regular meetings with the street children in two major gathering locations such as Konyokonyo and Hai Thoura where we tell them Bible stories and pray with them. We are thankful to God for these street kids, they response quickly to God’s word.

We are seeing transformation in their lives through God’s word we shared with them. They have been experiencing God’s love in their lives. Some of them have repented and they wanted to be in new home where they would undergo through a complete change of life (transformation). The Lord’s word works in their hearts and they wanted to see the real transformation in their lives. They are most convicted and God’s word is moving in their lives.

In addition to the above, we did end of year assessment and closed the Year with event where children came to our compound and shared with them God’s word and fed them.

2. End Year 2019 Assessment

We are very grateful to God for the “Year 2019 Assessment”. We have assessed 12 locations this year and we got to understand that the number of street children have increased more than last year. Most of the children come from the states to Juba (capital city of South Sudan) seeking for help and some ran from their home areas because of war that broke out in 2013.

Many children are starving on the street of every markets in all the states in South Sudan. In this year assessment, we got both genders (boys and girls) on the street and most of them do not have parents due to the civil war and political war invaded in 2013 to 2016.

In the assessment, we found many children are affected by glue, drugs and petrol as their only way of survival, some of these children are disabled and blind. Many of them are true orphans, and some have single parents under financial pressure.

Due to the situations such a loss of parents, parental abuse, alcoholism, youthful rebellion and range of traumas resulting from the war or intercommunal and tribal fighting, many children have become homeless and are vulnerable to social risks and hazards such as substance abuse, theft, and human trafficking. The pictures of starving children are shown below.

Pic₁: Most of these children have no place to sleep. They spent their nights on the verandas and isolated places outside the market during day time. This is one of the children starving of hunger. He said both parents were killed and his relatives are not showing him a parental care.
